"Philanthropy" was the subject of an interesting address made by Dr. Walter L. Lingle before the Woman's Club yesterday afternoon. Dr. Lingle is a man of very sterling and strong personality, and the truths he presented to his audience of wide interest. He is a native of North Carolina, and occupies a chair at the Union Theological Seminary here, and has been prominently identified with philanthropic work in the South. Miss Jane Rutherfoord introduced the speaker.

Dr. Lingle began his address by saying that he considered the business of being a woman the greatest business in the world, and that he had not come to the club to give an oration or read a finished essay, but to have a heart-to-heart talk. There is a great need in these days of straying from the original meaning of things, that one stop to define, or rather redefine, the meaning of the world philanthrops. meaning of the word philanthropy, and he made an interesting digression in giving the derivation and origin of the two Greek words that go to make giving the derivation and origin of the two Greek words that go to make this word mean love; of all mankind. In philanthropy it is not simply giving money; it is the giving out of love and self that must right the wrong and smooth the rugged way. The Man of Sorrows was the greatest philanthropist that ever lived. All of the enormously wealthy people who dispense their millions to their fellowmen are by no means all philanthropists; there must be a genuine love for humanity back of the great gifts. There are such vast opportunities for service now and the chance for doing good to one's brother-man and sisterwoman almost unlimited.

Dr. Lingle dwelt at length on the known and organized lines of philanthropies, but urged the club to take as their part in great philanthropic movements of to-day some of the neglected and out-of-the-way channels, where there is so much more need of love than there is of the actual money. He said that he considered the working the first marking the marking.

Given by Men of Windsor in Honor of Young Women.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Windsor, Va., March 17.—The young men of Windsor gave a St. Patrick's Day party to the young women of the town at the Masonic. Hall to-night. The hall was decorated in green, and many progressive games were played.

Those present were: Misses Elsie Persons Allie Johnson, Helen Johnson.

The club was decorated in tulips and jonquils, and the hostesses for the afternoon were Miss Nannie Massle, Miss V. M. Pleasants, Mrs. John Peyton McGuire and Mrs. Llewellyn McVeigh.

Snead-Cocke. Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Cocke, of Enfield, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Martha Jane, to Francis Chapman Snead, of Eina Mills, the wedding to be celebrated some time in April. Owing to recent mourning in the family of the bride-elect, the wedding will be a very quiet one. The announcement is of much interest in Richmond, where Mr. Snead's brother, Thomas where Mr. Snead's brother, Thomas Burton Snead, resides.

Judge W. S. Homes, of Boydton, who has been on a visit to Columbia, S. C., where he was the guest of his son, Prof. M. G. The Story-Tellers' League of Rich-nond will hold its March meeting on Wednesday afternoon, March 19, at 5 Wednesday afternoon, March 19, at 5 o'clock in the auditorium of the Virginia Mechanics' Institute. Stories appropriate for early spring and with the Easter thought implied will be told by some of the best story-tellers in the city. The glory and beauty of awakening life at this season has appealed to the imagination since the dawn of reason, and nowhere is more exquisitely portrayed than in the myths of old, as well as in the perfect Bible story of the resurrection. This meeting of the Story-Tellers' League will be especially helpful to the Sunday school teachers of Richmond.

there is so much more need of love than there is of the actual money. He said that he considered the working girl the greatest moral and spiritual problem of the world to-day, with all the thousands of homeless, friendless young girls that need the "loving philanthropy." The Young Women's Christian Association is demonstrating what can be done to aid in this direction. The main trouble is that there is everything to work on and so little to work with. There's a philanthropy needed among the down and out class—that great body of human driftwood that is sweeping so swiftly out to the sea of certain destruction.

Dr. Lingle's talk was very instructive. He laid bare the need and urged and called for aid along the many out-

Hampton Court is one of the most beautiful of royal palaces—so beautiful of royal palaces—so beautiful, indeed, that when Cardinal Wolsey built it for himself, Henry VIII, became envious thereof, declaring that it was infinitely superior to any of his regal abodes and did not rest until he had obtained possession thereof, it stands near the Thames, in lovely gardens of great extent, a portion of which is reserved for the exclusive use of the immates of the palace. These include the widow of Field Marshal Lord Napier, of Magdala, Mrs. Creighton, widow of the Bishop of London, and Field Marshal Lord and Lady Wolsely.

The mame of Wemyss, which should be pronounced as if spelt "Weem:" is taken from the Celtic word Vumbs or caves. These caves line the coast of what was in olden times the Shire of Wemyss, and the interiors bear many sculptured traces of the early Christian missionaries who sought shelter than seventy years ago as a member of the House of Commons for East Gloucestershire, and remained there until the death of his father transferred him to the House of Lords, to which he brought an atmosphere of breeziness to which it was unaccustomed in the coast of what was in olden times the Shire of the was i

King George, besides bestowing upon her the same rank and procedence as if her husband, the ill-fated Antarctic explorer, had lived to receive a knight commandership of the Order of the Bath, has arranged with, Prime Minister Asquith to grant her for life apension equivalent to $5,000 a year.

When first the news was received in the matter of pension as if he had fallen in battle. On consideration, however, it was decided by the monarch and by his Prime Minister this would be inadequate. So they arranged that she should draw for life not only his full pay of $5,000 a year as senior captain, but in addition there to the annual allowance of $1,900 which he would have received in addition to his full pay, while in command of a first-class battleship or cruiser.

Jesse Woolwine Probably Fatally Wounds Aaron Underwood Following Difficulty.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Christlansburg, Va., March 17 .- Jesse Woolwine shot and dangerously if not fatally wounded Aaron Underwood in front of Woolwine's residence. Depot Street, Saturday night, and th condition, though the result will not be ascertained for a day or two. It be ascertained for a day or two. It is understood that the two had some difficulty during the afternoon, and as Underwood and two others were passing Woolwine's house on their way home the trouble was renewed, and after a number of epithets Woolwine shot from his door with a shotgun at Underwood, who was standing in the street about sixty feet away, striking him in the face and breast with more than 200 small shot. One eye was shot out, and the wounded man lost much blood through his mouth and nose.

Woolwine claims he shot in self-defense, while Underwood says he was shot without cause or provocation, and that the difficulty was renewed by Woolwine, who dared him to come in his yard, and when he declined shot him through a crack in the door. Woolwine was arrested and will be tried before a justice when the result of the wounds is ascertained.
